INTRODUCTION

The twenty-ninth¹ Annual Directory of Officials and Organizations Concerned with the Protection of Birds and Game is issued for the convenience of game-law enforcement officials, bird and game protection and conservation associations and societies, and others interested in procuring information concerning game conditions and game laws. The organization and personnel of governmental agencies of the United States, Canada, Newfoundland, and Mexico concerned with game matters are given, with the names and addresses of officials of state-wide game and bird protection associations and societies, and of the principal national organizations. Officials of the national and State divisions of the Izaak Walton League of America and of the various Audubon Societies also are included.

As in the previous issue of the directory the lists of organizations that are national in character are given directly following the list of Federal officials, and the organizations that are state-wide in character are inserted immediately after the names of State officials. Similar arrangement has been made of the national and provincial organizations in Canada.

The official titles of the chief United States game warden, the deputy chief, and the United States game wardens have been changed to United States game conservation officer, assistant United States game conservation officer, and United States game protectors, respectively.

New associations added to the directory are the American Wild Fowlers; the Arkansas division of the Izaak Walton League of America; the Illinois Audubon Society; the Michigan Conservation Congress; the Northern Michigan

¹ Previous editions may be consulted at many public libraries, as follows: 1900-1914, in Circulars of the Biological Survey; 1915-1918, in Documents of the Biological Survey; 1919 to 1926, in Department of Agriculture Circulars; and 1927 to date in Miscellaneous Publications of the department.

Sportsmen's Association; the Mississippi Association for the Conservation of Wild Life; the Central Ohio Anglers' and Hunters' Club; the Wing, Fin, and Fleetwood Club, successor to the Eastern Oregon Sportsmen's Association; the Oregon Game Protective Association, successor to the Oregon State Sportsmen's Association; and the Southwestern Game and Fish Conservation Association.

Information is desired by the Bureau of Biological Survey concerning national and state-wide organizations interested in the protection and conservation of birds and game that are not included in this issue, and changes in the personnel of those organizations listed, as they may occur.

Persons desiring detailed information concerning the game and fish laws of the various States and Provinces should communicate with the game officials of those States or Provinces in which they are interested. Game laws are published in pamphlet form in all the States, and summaries of the game and fur laws of the various States and Provinces and of Mexico are published annually by the United States Department of Agriculture in the Farmers' Bulletin series. Nos. 1575 and 1576, respectively, for the season 1928-29.)

The names and addresses of the United States game protectors who enforce the migratory-bird treaty and Lacey Acts will be found in the directory under the heading "Federal Officials." Violations of these acts may be reported to the protectors, or directly to the Bureau of Biological Survey at Washington, D. C.
